

As a person who teaches kids science in small town Illinois, I know what happens as funding gets more and more reduced. I know that a seamless integration of technology in the classroom is a huge way that small schools can even dream of keeping up with the larger schools. Access to high speed internet and the technology to be able to utilize that speed will be the key to allowing modern teaching and learning to occur - fairly - across the nation.